

24th June 2026

LGS Newsletter 167.14

Liverpool Geological Society event

Tuesday 8th to Friday 11th September 2026

EIG Conference 2026, University of Liverpool

Conference Information:

<https://www.eigconferences.com/>

I now have the access codes to be issued to bona-fide LGS members for booking their reduced-price tickets to the 2-day Lecture Programme of the EIG Conference.

The code will give access to a total of 25 discounted tickets each day (50 tickets in all), with a maximum of one ticket each day per person, at the greatly discounted price of £25 per ticket. The ticket price includes morning and afternoon refreshments as well as lunch, and it allows access to the lectures and trade stands, but not the evening socials. Full details of the conference will be issued nearer the time, to those who have booked.

Please just email me if you would like the 'Ticket Access' code to make a booking for this event. Optional field trips can be added on to the booking (but at a small additional cost).

Maggie (LGS Secretary), email: lgssecretary19@gmail.com

Manchester Geological Association

Saturday 17th October 2026

Annual Broadhurst Lectures

These will comprise three presentations:

- Ian Jackson, author and podcaster will give a talk on the Geology of Hadrian's Wall and how it influenced those who lived there.
- Les Knight will talk about his work mapping glacial erratics across the country.
- Dr Jamie Pringle will discuss forensic geophysics. The talk will show how geophysics assists police investigations by locating and characterising suspected illegal activities that ultimately provide evidence in courts of law.

The 2026 / 2027 Indoor Lecture Programme has been published on the MGA website:

<https://manchestergeology.org.uk/>